CAN'T BE HELPED

We are naturally greatly disappointed that the Reconstruction of the famous Surrender House at the Old Appomattox Court House has been indefinitely postponed, but to the priority of the National Defense Program. It had been hoped that the long-awaited restoration of the McLean House would get under way not later than early spring.

However, it is not fair for localities to demand that the Federal government "get along" with the Defense PRODUCTION and yet wiggle around to seek "business as usual" in their community. Appomattox is proud to make this definite sacrifice in the interest of Defense, but we shall now be MORE DEMANDING THAN EVER that defense output ROLL AHEAD.

Communities like Appomattox are sacrificing .... the people of the Union are willing to shoulder burdens for DEFENSE .... but that patriotic spirit will not continue forever unless our duly elected government ends the countless labor disputes and speeds the SLOW MOTION output of defense material.

If, AS IS GENERALLY EXPECTED, the Labor Board surrenders to JOHN L. LEWIS on his demand for a closed Union Shop, and Mr. Roosevelt takes it lying down, our nation will be far on the road to DEFEAT, worse than that which our Southland met at Appomattox in 1865.....for this time there will be no gracious General U. S. Grant to give gracious terms!

OUGHT TO BE PLAIN

It should be plain to everyone by now that the United States is all wrapped up in this war .... that we are in it up to our necks, and that there is no chance whatever of our seeing it through on a basis of just sending supplies to England and/or Russia. Declaration or no declaration, ...we are at war. The all-out sinking of America's ships in the last few days testifies that Germany now regards German-American relations as on a shooting basis. Some weeks ago we were told that American warships had orders to "shoot on sight." Thus far, it would appear that German subs have been quicker on the trigger than we have.

Historians will record the stages by which we entered World War Number Two. The fact of the present is that we are in. We are committed. We are no longer neutral. Not only shall we arm merchantmen and send those we can get through to British ports, but we will definitely send troops abroad when the moment arrives to take the offensive. Many of us hate to see us involved in war, but the decision was no longer in doubt. We are in. Like it or lump it, we are in!

And the quicker we get on a one-hundred per cent war-footing the better for the safety of America.

There is no time to dicker and palaver.

There is no time for strikes.

The fight is already on. American boys are being killed! American ships are being sunk. Both sides now have orders to shoot on sight. You can name that war or football, but realists don't kid themselves.

DATA FOR THE RECORD

The Staunton Evening Leader

President Roosevelt has been in office since March, 1933.

In 1933, there were 1,695 strikes in all categories.

In 1934, there were 1,856 strikes.
In 1935, there were 2,014 strikes.
In 1936, there were 2,172 strikes.
In 1937, there were 4,740 strikes.
In 1938, there were 2,772 strikes.
In 1939, there were 2,613 strikes.
In 1940 there were 2,508 strikes.

For the first five months of 1941, there were 1,593.

LONGER LIFE

Statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company have reported that in 1939 the life expectancy at birth for white females was 66.4 years and for white males 62.6 years. As compared with children born in 1900, the average girl baby can expect to live 15 1/3 years longer, the average boy 14 1/3 years longer.e This, as the Metropolitan statisticians comment, "bears eloquent witness to the vitality of the American people.'' —Winchester Star.

WHAT WOULD A FRENCHMAN THINK ABOUT?

The actual state of affairs in the world today has never been brought home to the majority of American citizens. They continue to hide behind the complaisant belief that things are going to come out all right, and politics and labor unions are permitted to delay the progress of our national defense and play into Hitler's hands. Even when our men are killed on an American warship by a German torpedo we take such action as a matter of course. To be sure the loss of men and ships is the natural consequence of our naval patrol. It is time, however, that the American people got more worked up about incidents of this kind and become more determined to do everything possible to kill the Nazi menace.

This is not to advocate wearing a long face or disrupting the tenor of the lives of the people any more than possible. Such action destroys efficiency. However, we should demand that an end be put to dissatisfaction and strikes even if it means freedom of speech or a declaration of war. A declaration of war on Germany would mean little more military action for the present than we are now seeing through. It would mean more naval warfare. The important thing is it would put the country on a war footing internally which would mean that labor, money and all our endeavors would be conscripted for the single purpose of defense.

Under the caption "Wonder what a Frenchman Thinks About," a striking clipping from a business paper advertisement of Warner and Swasey, Cleveland, Ohio, calls attention to the fact that before the war a Frenchman was as free in his thoughts and actions as an American today. He was so free that he continued to argue, use influence for selfish ends and keep his country in a disorganized and disunited condition while his neighbor was arming for the kill. Now his thoughts are different.

"Two years ago a Frenchman was as free as you are today. Today what does he think—

"—as he humbly steps into the gutter to let his conquerors swagger past,

"—as he works 53 hours a week for 30 hours' pay,

"—as he sees all trade unions outlawed and all the rights for which he sacrificed his country trampled by his foreign masters,

"—as he sees his wife go hungry and his children face a life of serfdom,

"—what does that Frenchman, a soldier, workman, politician or business man—think today? Probably it's something like this: 'I wish I had been less greedy for myself and more anxious for my country. I wish I had realized you can't beat off a determined invader by a quarreling, disunited people at home; I wish I had been willing to give in on some of my rights to other Frenchmen instead of giving all of them to a foreigner; I wish I had sacrificed other Frenchmen's rights too; I wish I had known that patriotism is work, not talk; giving, not getting.'

"And if that Frenchman could read our newspapers today, showing our pressure groups each demanding things be done for them instead of for our country, wouldn't he say to American business men, politicians, soldiers and workmen: 'If you knew the horrible penalty your action is bound to bring, you'd bury your differences now before they bury you; you'd work for your country as you never worked before; and wait for your private ambitions until your country is safe. Look at me.... I worked too little and too late.' "

LOOKING FOR THE GOOD

One of our esteemed readers recently asked us we did not publish each week an account of what went on in the mayor's and trial justice courts. He said the citizens of the county ought to be informed of the criminal dockets ... who was arrested for what. Well, perhaps so, we certainly that most people eagerly seek knowledge of the latest scandal about their neighbors; and,...we have no desire to suppress news. However, we have never felt that it was ideal for a weekly newspaper to vie with a scandal sheet or cater to stories of the wrong-doings of its readers. There is enough of that sort of thing. Nor do we believe that the publication of the names of every person arrested for minor crimes would decrease the number of crimes committed. It would merely offend the good names of relatives of those arrested. Major crimes are reported, but petty violations we omit.

Likewise, we believe that the goal of a weekly newspaper is to boost, not knock. If we can't find something good to say about you, we will keep quiet.....until you re dead, and then we'll say something good, regardless! Our contribution is to report the wholesome, to inspire, to educate, to mold character, to promote the welfare and progress of our trade area.

You don't combat wrong-doing by saying it doesn't exist. Neither do you defeat it by advertising it. The best way is to train people's minds to seek out, work for and reward the good things in life.

Lots of readers may say: I wish I owned that paper for a week, what I would tell about so-and-so. Nuts. Were that your motive in owning a paper, you wouldn't last much beyond that one week! Nor would you deserve to.

Advertising IS Good News

Specially now, when the world is so full of strife, misery and anxiety, it's good to be able to get the pleasant news that comes in the ads.

About a light-hearted summer turban ... sportswear coolly stolen from the men . . . a refreshing hot weather beverage . . .

A pipe that promises a smoke-treat . . . a light straw hat for the steaming brow . . .

The ads are reminders that life can't all be woe . . . reminders to be as normal and comfortable as possible . . . reminders to which you can sensibly respond. For the ads lead you to sound values.

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

Sin with its devastating consequences has its only remedy in the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. He died to set us free from the penalty, the power, and ultimately the very presence of sin. However, His death, which was for all mankind, is effective only for those who in repentance and faith accept His redeeming grace and turning from their sin.

I. Worldly Pleasure Brings Sorrow (vv. 11-16).

Selfishness is at the heart of sin, which is essentially self-will over against God's will. The younger son, who represents the sinner, wanted his own way. He suffered from

1. Forfeiteasnes Under Restraint (vv. 11, 12). The father loved his son and sought his welfare by proper parental control, but the boy wanted to be free to live as he pleased. God loves all men and seeks by loving and gracious restraint to lead them in ways of righteousness and peace. But they, while they want His blessings, are often eager to get away from His guiding hand.

2. A Request Resulting in Responsibility (vv. 12, 13). When the prodigal asked for his inheritance he took upon himself full responsibility for its use. The man who refuses to have Christ rule over his life assumes a grave and heavy burden which he is not able to bear.

It is an awful thing to rule God out of one's life, to attempt to steer a successful course through the stormy sea of life. Why do it? It will always result in loss and failure.

3. Riotous Living Leading to Reproach (vv. 13-16). In the "far country" he found for a time what we call "fun," but it led to bitter sorrow. To the flesh there are "pleasures of sin" (Heb. 11:25), but they are only "for a season"; that is, "very short lived and they come high." The devil is not such a fool as to go fishing without bait. The pleasures of sin are the devil's bait, and they always have a hook in them. If you bite at the devil's bait you will soon have the devil's hook in your gills and be in the bottom of the devil's boat" (John W. Bradbury).

The end of Satan's "fun" road was a pigpen in a far country. That may not always be literally true (although it happens often enough), but it is always true spiritually. Men and women are in a state of spiritual collapse and disgrace because they have rejected God's way. But there is a way out.

II. Godly Sorrow Brings Joy (vv. 17-24).

Paul tells us that "godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation" and thus differs from "the sorrow of the world" which "worketh death" (II Cor. 7:10). The prodigal found his way back to the father's house. First, there came to him

1. Remembrance and Realization (vv. 17-19). He began to think. If men and women could only be made to think we would have more repentance. But Satan tries to keep them too busy to think. He remembered what he had as a son in his father's household. What memories will your boy have in his hour of need? You are writing that record now.

He "came to himself." The man in sin is really unbalanced, abnormal, not himself, spiritually insane. When he "came to" he knew that he was in the way of the perishing. Then came

2. Repentance and Return (vv. 20, 21). To repent means to change your mind, to turn your life in an "about face" from sin to God. Repentance calls for more than thinking or talking or praying. One must act. The young man "arose and came to his father." That was his part, and then came the father's part—

3. Restoration and Rejoicing (vv. 22-24). The son expected to return as a hired servant, but his father restored him to full family fellowship. God is gracious, and the repentant sinner finds himself clad in the spotless robe of Christ's righteousness, wearing the ring of sonship, with shoes on his feet, so that he may go on the errands of his Father.

God's plan of salvation brings no half-way redemption. There are no stepsons or distant relatives in His family. It is a full salvation which brings glorious fellowship in life and service.

You who are still eating the husks of this world, who are in the far country herding swine, we invite you too to come to God and share in the rejoicing in the Father's house.
